Month 12. TWELVE MONTHS OF PREPAREDNESS IN REVIEW

Every month for the past twelve months the Stoneybrook Preparedness Committee has sent out important and useful information so that you and your neighbors can be more prepared for emergencies, both large and small. As we look forward to a new year, let's spend some time reviewing what we've learned.

We've talked about the importance of being prepared and having an emergency plan that you have practiced. We've reviewed the basic supplies (such as food and water) that you might need for a disaster in which you may not receive outside help for up to two weeks. If needed, do you remember how to shut off the gas to your house or know what you would do if there is no electricity? Do you have a first aid kit and know where it is?

All of this information and more can be found under Preparedness Tips at the Stoneybrook website:

The Preparedness Tips Section has a wealth of information as well as many resources for your review, all readily available at your fingertips. For starters, you could get together with a friend or neighbor and review each one of the 12 Months of Preparedness Tips every week to keep them fresh in your mind. What could be easier!
